

During the chat, the pupils were able to prove first hand what business practice consists of. The theoretical issues that our students have studied in class were linked to real practices in the work place and policies that are being taken inside the company itself. The students enjoyed watching a powerpoint presentation about the traditional family run company, and looking at the latest developments in Valor products.

They also learnt that, to be successful in any business project, you not only need money, you also need to be prepared, have initiative and most of all, perseverance. At the end of the talk, Pedro López gave all the students chocolates and donated a beautiful book and a DVD with the story of the company 'Chocolates Valor' to the school. We look forward to seeing Señor López again next year!
